Rental laundry: keep each care block

Wash Bodega Team. October 2026. English edition.

Compare the piece, not the property bag

Take the item name and care label out of the property handoff first. A sheet set, duvet cover, and waterproof protector can arrive from the same home while retaining different care instructions. This guide compares six concrete decisions without turning similar settings into permission to share a load.

The poster starts with one sheet set, compares four cover/protector care instructions, then isolates a zipper-and-button warning. Its groups organize information; they do not prescribe a shared washer load. Saatva's own-load instruction is stated explicitly for its cover. It is not added to the other makers. [1] [2] [3] [4] [5] [6]

Use the blank worksheet for an internal property code, textile group, product care, and commercial handling questions. Keep guest identities and stay details out of it. It is not a website form and is not submitted to Wash Bodega.

1. IKEA NATTJASMIN sheet set

The white NATTJASMIN sheet set, article 206.011.52, has a warm machine-wash instruction with a maximum of 140°F/60°C and a normal cycle. It excludes bleach. The set includes a sheet, fitted sheet, and pillowcases. [1]

Its remaining care specifies medium tumble drying on a normal cycle, high ironing, and no dry cleaning. Keep the whole care block with this set. A short poster wash line is not a complete replacement for the product label. [1]

At the handoff

Record the product name and article number when they identify the actual set. Keep wash, dryer, and ironing information in their own fields. This is a proposed organizational record, not an IKEA instruction to combine unrelated pieces.

The next section has a separately opened NATTJASMIN duvet-cover product. Matching words can be compared; this guide does not turn that comparison into a shared-load authorization.

2. IKEA NATTJASMIN duvet cover

The blue-green NATTJASMIN duvet cover and pillowcase product, article 605.958.42, specifies medium tumble drying on a normal cycle. That is the poster's second decision, distinct from the sheet set's wash decision. [2]

Its care also states warm machine washing with a maximum of 140°F/60°C on a normal cycle, no bleach, high ironing, and no dry cleaning. The product's cover identity stays attached to those words. [2]

Compare without adding a rule

The two NATTJASMIN pages print matching wash and dry wording. Neither cited care block is an instruction to add every duvet cover to a sheet load. Keep the actual product and complete care available for the person loading the machine. [1] [2]

On the worksheet, distinguish this cover from its insert and from other duvet-cover brands. No insert cycle is supplied by a cover page. A property bag is a handoff grouping, not a care label.

3. Parachute Sateen duvet cover

Parachute's Sateen Duvet Cover details call for a cool machine wash with mild liquid laundry detergent and no bleach. Cool is the page's care word. It is not converted to a degree or silently renamed warm. [3]

The same details give low tumble drying, wool dryer balls instead of dryer sheets, prompt removal, and low ironing if desired. Medium drying from a NATTJASMIN example does not replace this cover's low setting. [3]

Retain the difference

Write the Parachute product and its wash/dry words on the sheet when this is the cover present. The Spanish uses agua fresca for cool and keeps Saatva's cold-water instruction separate.

The cited Parachute line does not state an own-load rule. This guide therefore does not label it wash alone. If a care or load question remains, obtain the actual product instructions rather than completing them with another maker's sentence.

4. IKEA LENAST waterproof protector

LENAST article 404.482.96 has a care block that says very-hot machine washing on a durable-press cycle. It also excludes bleach, allows low tumble drying on a normal cycle, and excludes ironing and dry cleaning. These are this protector's words. [4]

The page's descriptive body separately says machine washable at 140°F (Hot). That body wording and the care block's very hot/durable-press wording are not merged into a new numerical setting here. The poster quotes the care-block decision without inventing a conversion. [4]

Keep the question with the model

If that difference needs resolution for the actual product, ask its maker rather than averaging the statements. Use the worksheet's unresolved-care field. The field is a handoff suggestion, not a new manufacturer procedure.

Waterproof is not one care program. The next protector has a separate hardware warning; the Saatva card concerns a duvet cover, not either protector. Product type and model must stay visible.

5. Saatva duvet cover: on its own

Saatva's duvet-cover help page explicitly specifies a machine wash on its own, with cold water and a gentle cycle. The poster retains all three choices. Its own-load wording is an opened instruction for this cover, not an inference from a different temperature. [5]

The same help page excludes bleach, specifies low tumble drying and prompt removal, and recommends mild organic detergents. These statements belong to the duvet-cover answer. They are not copied onto a waterproof protector. [5]

Before the cover joins a handoff

Keep the product name and its on-its-own instruction together in the worksheet. Do not shorten the entry to cold and lose the separate-load part.

The commercial service lists duvet covers as a possible item. That list does not cancel the product's care or promise a guest-turnaround window. Confirm the actual mix and handling in the account's quote. [7]

6. SOTNÄTFJÄRIL: zippers and buttons

IKEA SOTNÄTFJÄRIL article 305.313.09 warns against washing with items such as zippers or buttons that can penetrate or damage its inner waterproof layer. The poster prints that hardware decision. It does not ban this protector from a washing machine. [6]

Its care block permits a warm machine wash, maximum 140°F/60°C, on a normal cycle. It excludes bleach, specifies low tumble drying on a normal cycle, and excludes ironing and dry cleaning. Low drying is not the NATTJASMIN sheet set's medium drying. [1] [6]

At the sorting point

Identify the protector and whether other items have the named hardware. Keep that question visible for the next worker. Do not replace it with a blanket sentence that all waterproof pads are unlaunderable.

The product appears here to explain its care warning. That is not a new commercial service promise to accept every protector. Confirm the actual item through the quote. [7]

A property handoff that preserves care

The six blank fields cover internal property code and textile group; piece/maker/model; wash words and an explicit separate-load instruction when present; dry setting and hardware restriction; count/property-bagging request; and an unresolved care or timing question.

Complete a copy locally or print it. It is not submitted to Wash Bodega. Keep guest names, booking references, access codes, stay dates, and private addresses out of this worksheet. An internal code can organize the linen discussion without becoming a guest record.

Before passing the bag

- Keep sheet, cover, insert, and protector identities distinct.

- Preserve wash and dryer choices separately.

- Carry Saatva's own-load instruction with that cover.

- Carry the IKEA protector's zipper/button warning with that protector.

- Ask for counts and property bagging rather than assuming them. [7]

These are planning prompts. The file does not send a quote request or reserve service.

Optional Wash Bodega service

The rental service lists sheets and pillowcases, bath and hand towels, duvet covers, and kitchen linens. Property bagging and counts are handling requests to confirm. Name the properties, who bags them, and the desired unit labels through the quote process. One cleaner serving several homes can be one account when agreed. [7]

There is no checkout-to-check-in promise, same-day guest turn, per-property software portal, or published linen price. A quote confirms item mix, handling, schedule, and pickup fit. No commercial minimum, schedule, or radius is published. Store access 24/7 does not set production hours. No dry cleaning, linen rental, or hospital sterilization is offered. [7]

Read the rental service page or call (832) 834-5689. Address: 6604 W Bellfort Ave, Houston, TX 77035. The QR opens that service page, not a worksheet submission or production booking. [7]

What this guide does not claim

No matching settings are promoted into maker-backed permission to combine products. No waterproof-protector machine ban, universal hot-water cycle, hospital procedure, disinfection result, or pest-killing promise is supplied. The LENAST care/body wording difference remains visible.

There is no wash recipe here for makeup, self-tanner, wine, duvet inserts, hand towels, or kitchen linens. Those items do not inherit a sheet's care because they travel from the same property. No missing-label rule is attributed to the FTC.

The host or cleaner confirms the item's actual care and the account's handling needs. Commercial timing is confirmed in a quote; the resource page and its QR do not promise laundry back before the next guest. [7]
